The New York Review says the preailing modes for ladles were never so bi carre and brilliant as now; and the sudde irruption of crimson, yellow, blue, green and scarlet, gold braid and buttons, can only be traced to the effect of the prevailing military spirit of the country. Our gay zonave and chasseur uniforms have produced a sort of mtagious fever for bright colors and singular patterns, which has at once seized upor consideration. And this military oirgin of the fashion further shows itsel in the actual insignis of the soldier, which are complacently dopted by the ladies. Chevrons, srmybuttens, corpe-hadges, etc., are now a standard portion of the modista's wares; and if and if the rage continues, we may expect to see our wives and daughters actually wearing swords and carrying cartridge-boxes.

their future performances. The principal play selected for this oceasion was Goldsmith's beautiful comedy, "She Stoops to Conquer," which, considering all things, was rendered in a manner that reflects credit upon the performers and the management. A good conception of most of the characters, and a faithful rendition of the same, combined to secure the success of our Amateurs on this occasion. That they were successful is much to their credit when we consider that, while the play is acknowledged to be one of the finest comedles in the is a good joke on bummers. The credit is due to Mr. Darrah, of bein well up in his part, but he seemed to have an incorrect conception of Hastings, rather giving him the air of a fop than the character that Sir Charles gives the friend o his son, "honest George Hastings, as worthy a fellow as ever lived."
